COMBATTING CAPELS

Hev. Dr. Hen Advances the Ultra-Protestaut Opinton.

The English Lutheran church was crowded last evening to hear a lecture by Dr. James Rea on the subject of "Protestantism and Progress," announced as a reply to one recently delivered by Mgr. Capel on "Catholicism and Progress." The lecturer stated that Protestantism associated with it all that was held sacred as to religion and civil liberty.

A hasty outline of the origin and history of the term Protestant, and a rapid sketch of of the term Protestant, and a rapid sketch of of the term Protestant, and a rapid sketch of Protestantism in Germany, were given, showing that before Luther's death Protestantism had been planted in many of the countries of Europe. The rise and progress of Protestantism in England was touched upon, from the reign of King John to Queen Elizabeth. The lecturer next turned his attention to Mgr. Capel, with regard to his treatment of civil and religious liborty. In a answer to Mgr. Capel he would quote, showing how far poperty was the friend of liberty and progress in the nineteenth century. On the twenty-second of April, 1863, the late Pius IX concluded a concordat with the republic of cluded a concordat with the republic of Ecuador, of which the first article stipulates: "The Catholic religion, apostolic and Roman, continues to be the religion of Ecuador; in con-"The Catholic religion, apostolic and Roman, continues to be the religion of Ecuador; in consequence there can never be permitted in the republic the exorcise of any worship, nor the existence of any society which may have been condemned by the church." Mexico's constitution of 1824 was also quoted from, in which it was ordained that "The religion of the Mexican nation is, and will be perpetually, the Roman Catholic apostolic. The nation will protect it by wise and just laws, and prohibit the exercise of any other religion whatever." In reference to this provision, the speaker quoted a paragraph from a recent article by Senator J. T. Morgan, of Alabama, on "Mexico," in which the latter says this demand of the church for supremacy over the civil power of the republic is enough to account for the greater part of the troubles experienced by Mexico in gaining her independence." "So that," continued the speaker, "whatever civil and religious liberty Mexico on poys to-day has been wrung from the church, and exists in spite of it." In further proof of the intolerance of the church of Rome in the nineteenth century the lecturer quoted from the encyclical of Pius IX, dated Aug. 15, 1854, in which that pontiff denounced "liberty of conscience" as "a pestilent error—the liberty of perdition." He likewise quoted from the encyclical and sylabus of the same pope issued a cathedra, in 1864, setting forth "the disabilities of the state and the rights and powers of the church," concerning which the speaker said that a more truculent manifesto had never issued from the thirteenth century. It might be affirmed that if Gregory VII chastised the men of his age with whore, Pius IX scourged those of his day with scorpions.

Upon the question of schools, he pointed to men of his age with whips, Pius IX scourged those of his day with scorpions.

Upon the question of schools, he pointed to Spain at the present day, and according to the statistics of 1882 it had some 11,800,000 population, and that 75 per cent. of its inhabitants could neither read nor write. The educational statistics of the city of Rome showed about the same proportation of ignorance, where out of a population of 180,000 only 50,000 can read and write, and this notwithstanding the fact that there is a priest, a standing the fact that there is a priest, monk, or a nun for every 191 of the popula-

These facts speak for themselves and need These facts speak for themselves and need no comment. If the worthy monsignor really means what he says when he tells us of his great love for education, he thought that he would find sufficient scope for his benevolence at home.

The lecturer closed with an eloquent contrast of the condition of Italy and Scotland, Spain and England, as illustrating the power and progress of Protestantism and the influence of popery.

At the close of the lecture the "Reformation Hymn," written by Horatius Bonnar, of Edinburgh and sung by several thousand voices at the Luther celebration in London, was recited by Miss Ida K. Hinds, of New York

St. Matthew's Church.

At the mass celebration of St. Matthew's church yesterday morning Father Chapelle read a statement of the church's finances read a statement of the church's finances during the past year. The amount received for pew rent was $0,162; offertory, $2,031.33; sanctuary, $444.06; house rent, $882; sale of property, $2,548.18, and donations, $28. The choir expenses were $2,332.61. The pastor and his assistant receive $1,000 and $700 respectively, and the calls for charity upon them were very numerous. Father Chapelle referred to the smallness of the vesper offerings on Sunday, these hardly aggregating $5. ings on Sunday, these hardly aggregating $5. His action in raising the pew reuts, had, he said, been amply justified, his only doubt being whether he had increased themenough. The church edifice and its environs were kept thoroughly insured, and this constitutes another of its many legitimate expenses.

THE POTOMAC.

No Danger of a Freshet Entertained by the Signal Office.

The signal service patrolman at Harper's Ferry informed the chief signal officer by telegraph yesterday evening that the Potomac river at that point had risen three feet and one inch in twenty-four hours.

one inch in twenty-four hours.

This report occasioned much alarm among the business men, especially those along the river front. During Saturday and a portion of yesterday several tugboats and steamers were kept busy trying to keep the channel in front of the city clear of ice. A force of men with long poles were also busy cutting the ice into squares and forcing it into the cleared channels. At a late hour last night the water was running with a velocity greater than was running with a velocity greater than usual, and the loose lee was moving down stream. At 1 a. m. the signal office telephoned THE REPUBLICAN that there is no sign of a freshet, and that probably there will be none. The Statue of Chief Justice Marshall.

The joint committee on the library were in consultation Saturday with George W. Biddle, William H. Rawle, John Cadwalader, Wayne McVeagh, and W. W. Wiltback, of Philadelphia, a committee of the trustees of the Marshall memorial fund, in respect to the selection of a site for the statue of Chief Jus-tice Marshall. After examining the capitol grounds it was determined to place the statue on the green upon the west front and in a line with the middle entrance to the build-BALTIOMORE, Feb. 3.—Reports have reached the city of an attack made upon a fleet of eighteen Maryland oyster dredgers by a Virginia gunboat off Stingray point on Tuesday. The attack was due to the fact that the Marylanders were acting illegally in dredging in Virginia waters. It seems that about noon, while the fleet were under easy sail, about a mile off the point, a strange schooner came out of the Piankatank river. So busy were the dredgers that no notice was taken of her until she was in the midst of the fleet, when with a shout some hundred armed men sprang from her hold and, running up the when with a shout some hundred armed mensurang from her hold and, running up the American flag to the peak, opened fire with a cannon and small arms into the astonished cystermen. The latter hoisted sails and scattered like frightened ducks.

So fierce was the fire that the crews of the vessels nearest the gunbost took refuge below,
and the schooner dashed through the water without any one at the helm. On several of the vessels the wheelman was forced to lie on his back on the deck and steer, while the balls whistled about him. The crew of the Ada Luddington refused to go on deck, and she, having no one at the wheel, was easily overhauled and captured. The others escaped into Marylaud waters, more or less damaged by the enemy's fire. The dredgers were all armed, but so scared were they, being so taken by surprise, that they never fired a shot. The Luddington was commanded by Capt. Andrew Steidle, and had a crew of nine men with a cargo of 1,300 bushels of cysters. The cargo will be confiscated and the crew are in the cargo of 1,300 bushels of oysters. The cargo will be confiscated and the crew are in the Middlesox jall awaiting trial. The Maryland oystermen are promising to retaliate.

Let Both Men Be Punished. ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 3 .- Miss Louise Wilson, a pretty country girl aged 16 years, residing in Clarkson, Monroe county, was brought to this city last week by Thomas Murphy, in whose house she worked and against whom she made a serious charge. Murphy took the girl to a boarding house on Oregon street, managed by a Mrs. Tripp. A day or two after the arrival Murphy took the day or two after the arrival Murphy took the girl to the office of Dr. A. Sherman, where she was treated. On Tuesday the girl returned to Mrs. Tripp's, where she was ill. The authorities were notified. District Attorney Taylor visited the house and the girl made a confession to him. Dr. Sherman was at once arrested, arraigned, pleaded not guilty, and held to bail in $5,000. Marphy will also be arrested. Miss Wilson is very low and may not live. It is said that detectives have made other discoveries concerning Dr. Sherman. There is considerable excitement here over the revelations. Two hours after the publication of the facts all the student boarders had left Mrs. Tripp's house.
